Dedication

It is to the OPENNESS of the world that we dedicate this year-book of 1983.

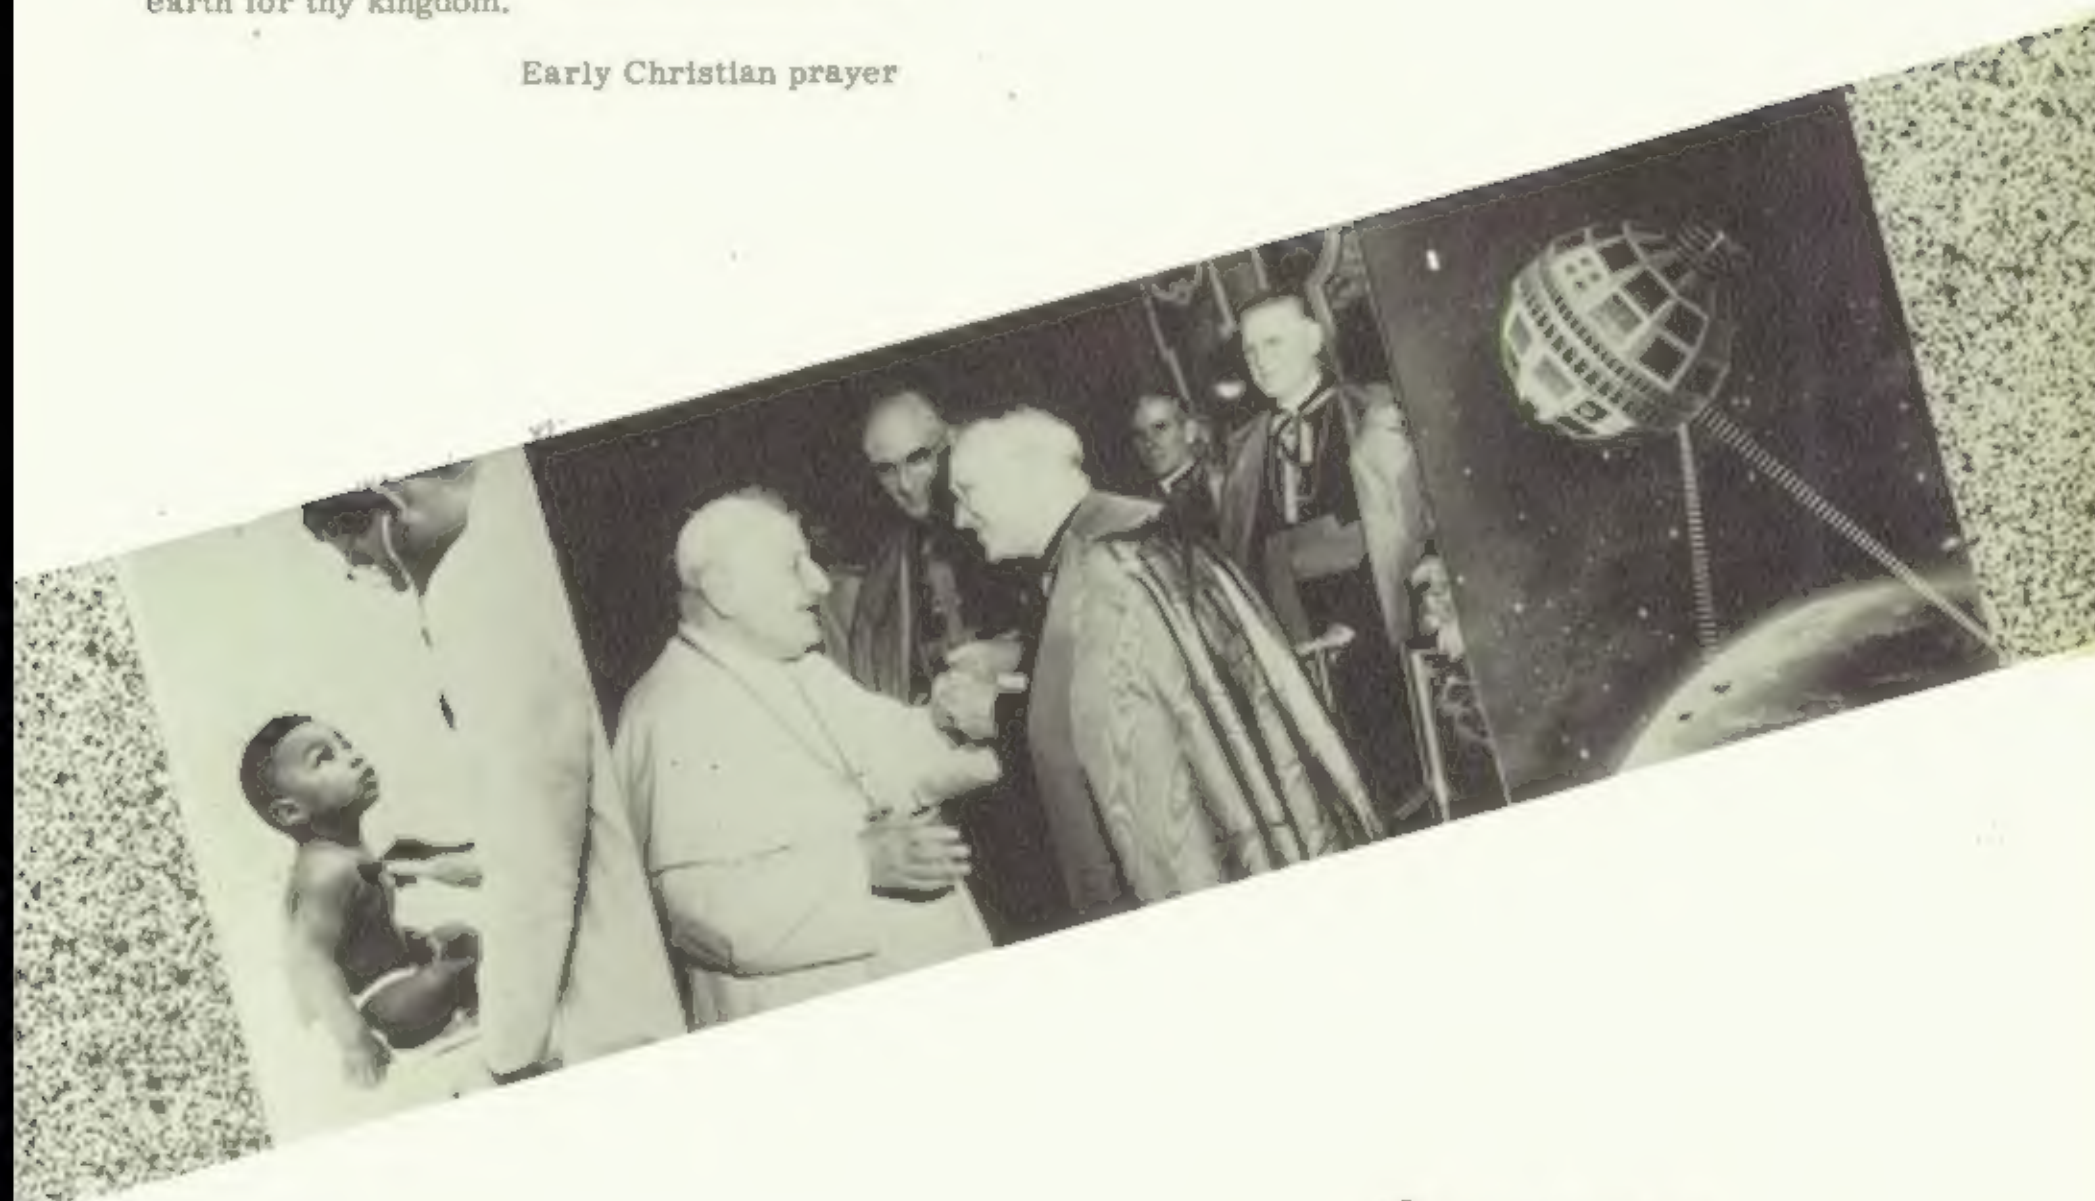

This year has seen the world grow in unity, grow in the means for becoming one family. In communication, in space, in progress, and idea, the world is becoming closer. The Church is stretching out her arms to enfold all her children; nations are embracing mankind.

To this world unity, we dedicate this book.

As bread which was formerly scattered abroad has been made compact and one, so may thy church be gathered from the ends of the earth for thy kingdom.

One world of faith -- through the Ecumenical Council

A man's body is all one, though, has a number of different organs; and all this multitude of organs goes to make up one body; so it is with Christ. We too, all of us, have been baptized into a single body by the power of a single Spirit. . . . There was to be no want of unity in the body; all the different parts of it were to make each other's welfare their common care. If one part is suffering, all the rest suffer with it; if one part is treated with honor, all the rest find pleasure in it. And you are Christ's body, organs of it depending upon each other.

Rome agog with red and purple and pageantry, with faces from Norway, India, Mexico, with Presbyterians, Catholics, Baptists. . . the Ecumenical Council will nurture love, love that begets unity.

This is Bishop DuBourg High School,

a microcosm in the heart of the Midwest. Through its long corridors - more than an eighth of a mile long -- stroll 2145 students. They have been born in many states of the union and some have come from Germany, Italy, Japan, Yugoslavia, Ireland, Yucatan. They gather here from 72 parishes, from the large, nearby city parishes, from small country places 30 to 40 miles away.

They are taught by 125 teachers who have studied and earned their degrees all across America and in some foreign countries. Some 40 of the teachers are Sisters of the Most Precious Blood of O'Fallon, Missouri, who are in charge of the school. Around 25 of the staff are diocesan priests who teach all of the religion and some other courses in the school. The other teachers are lay men and women.

The school was begun with only a freshman class in 1950. For almost four years it operated in temporary quarters at the Jefferson Barracks. The present building has been in use since January, 1954.

The school is named for Bishop Louis William Valentine DuBourg, the first bishop of the Diocese of St. Louis from 1815 to 1826. Bishop DuBourg is responsible for the planting of the seeds of Catholicism and education. Institutions begun during his term helped to establish St. Louis as a Catholic city with a great appreciation for education.

This statue was erected last year as a gift of the Classes of 1958 to 1962.

Directing the school with faith, firmness, and kind concern are its administrators, Sister M. Verona, C.P.P.S., and Father Richard J. Laborey. Their first purpose at Bishop DuBourg is to educate, to educate the whole man as a Christian destined for eternal happiness. The curriculum, the activities, the organizations, are all established with this goal in mind. Both Sister and Father work tirelessly to achieve an atmosphere of learning at DuBourg.

One world of science -- in space Scholastic life

Science is the study of the natural world. It is a way of thinking that helps us understand how things work. Scientists use observation and experimentation to gather information about the world around us. They then use this information to develop theories and models that explain the natural world.

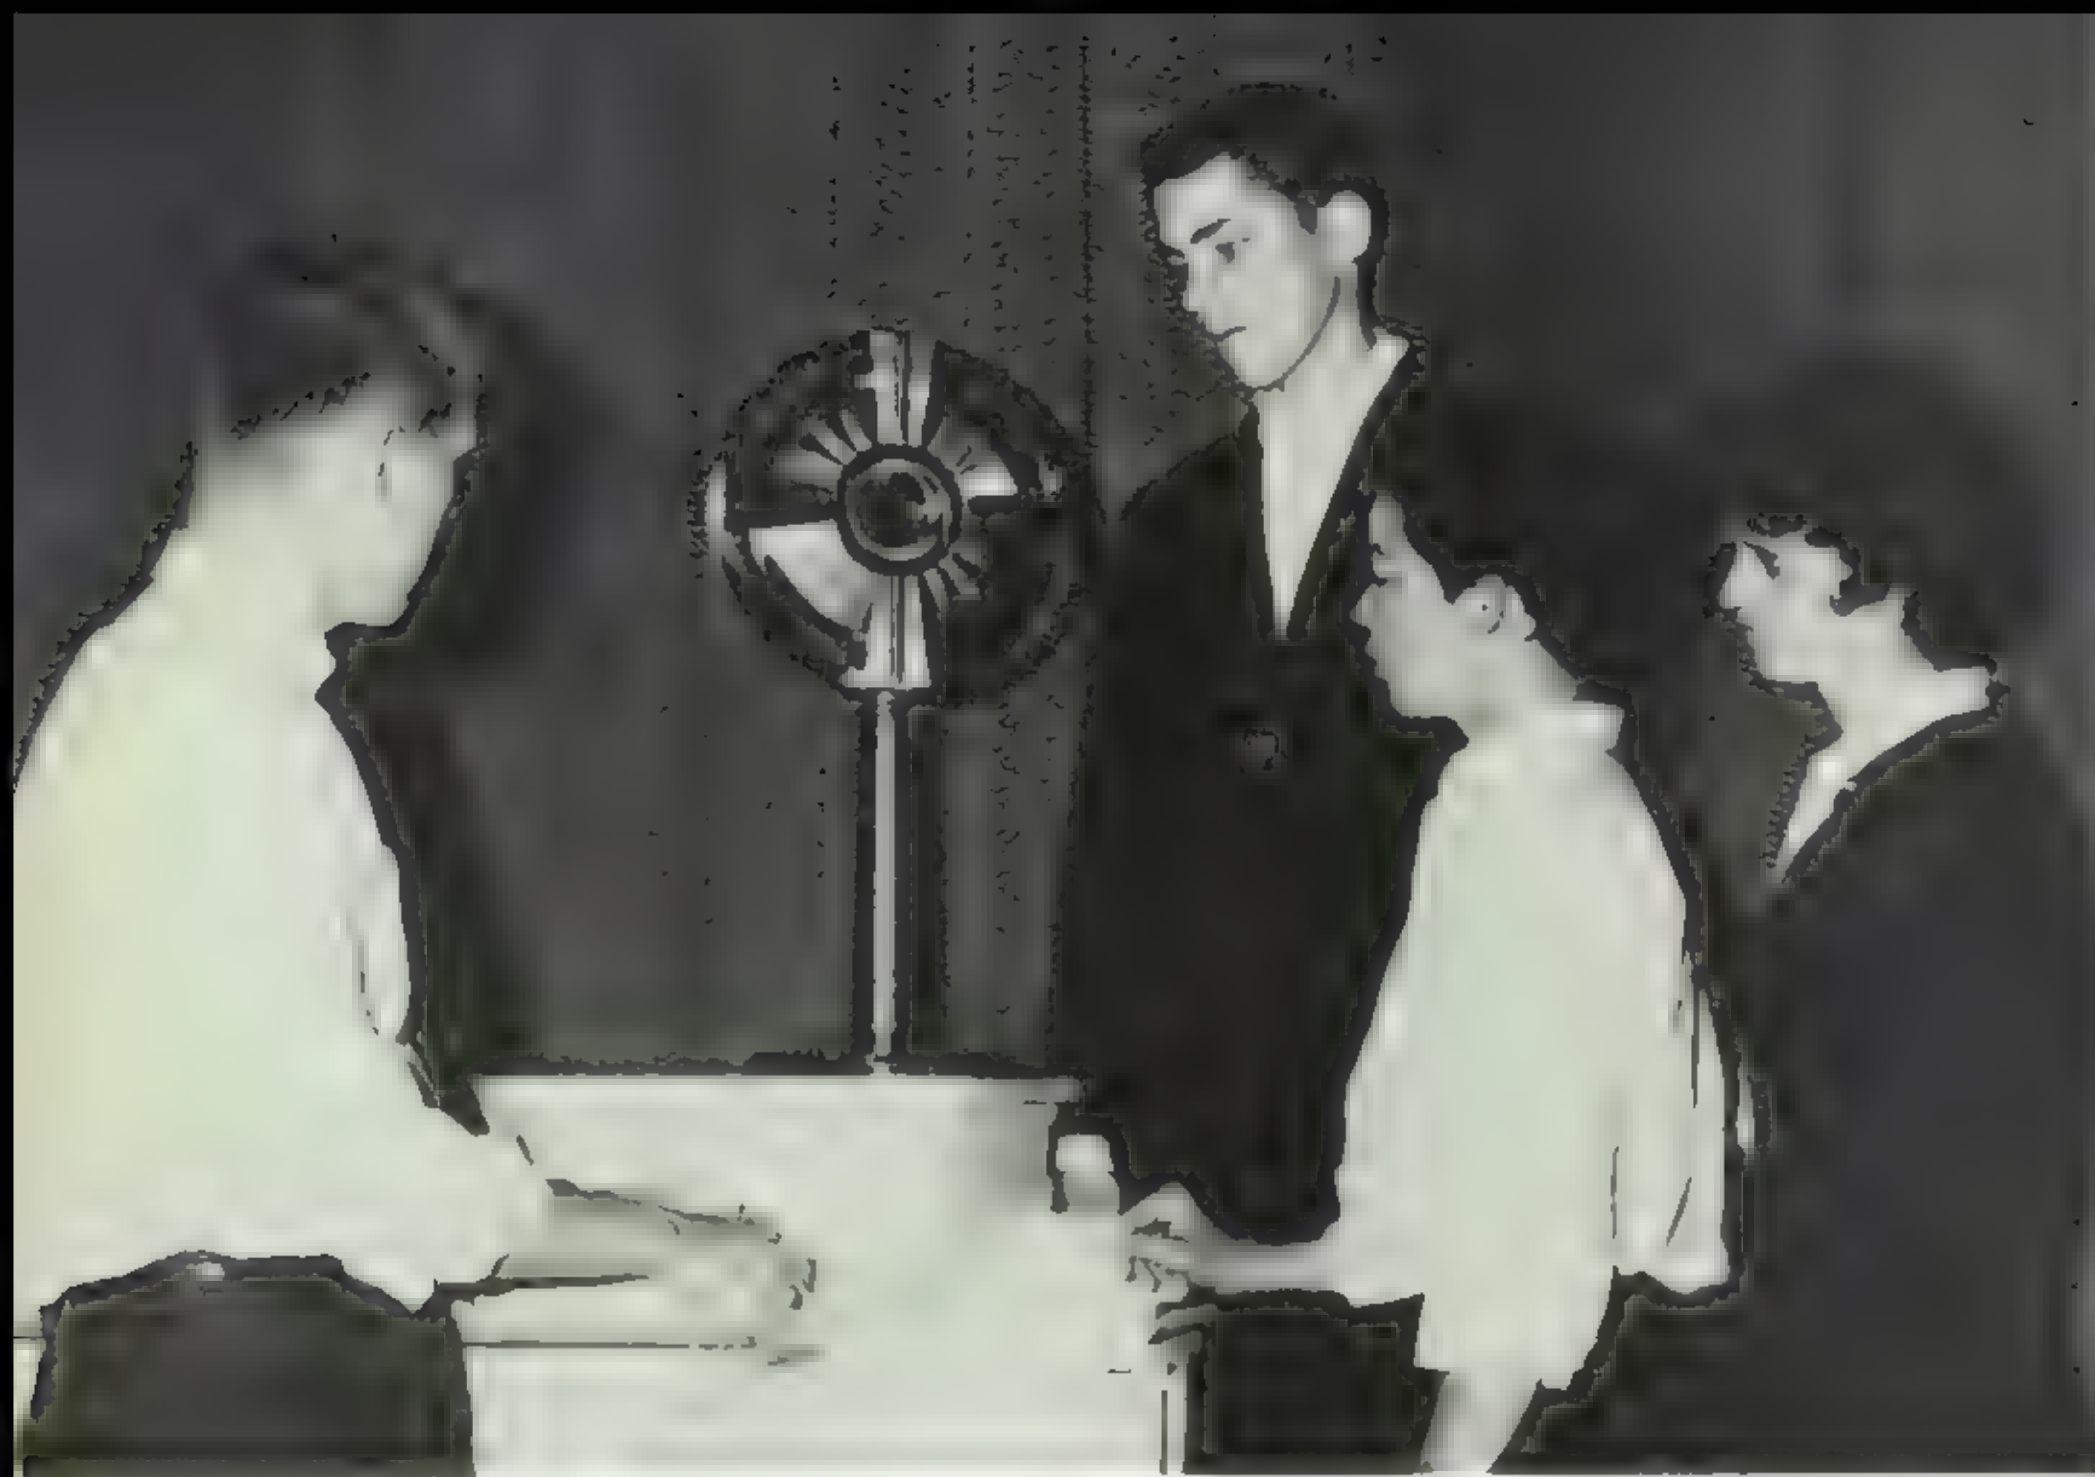

Science is a dynamic field that is constantly evolving. New discoveries are being made all the time, and scientists are working to understand the mysteries of the universe. Science is not just a subject to be studied in school; it is a way of life that helps us make sense of the world around us.

Science is the study of the natural world. It is a way of thinking that helps us understand how things work. Scientists use observation and experimentation to gather information about the world around us. They then use this information to develop theories and models that explain the natural world.

I hope - remember our friends - and all our love -

If the Kingdom is to come, if all are to be one as Christ and the Father are one, then every student at DuBourg must be an apostle. Some may, with long strides and dauntless hearts, carry the Good News to Bolivia, to China, to Finland, to lands that sit in the shadow of darkness. Others will light one candle.

DuBourg students learn their dignity and duty in the Body of Christ in four years of religion. They are helped in daily meditation to know God as a loving Father, to be Christ in their Nazareth-like lives, and to respond as a body to the Soul of the Church, the Holy Spirit of God.

They learn that life must be lived with love. They must love one another; they must love all men in the same way as Christ has loved them.

Beauty is the language of all men because it is the language of heaven. All men can understand the beauty of a vibrant color, a spidery line, a silky tone. Beauty makes men one.

Students at DuBourg are free to choose art in any or all of their last three years in school. Seniors may also register for drafting or mechanical drawing.

Nowhere in life must men have closer Christian rapport than in the business world. If men are to look upon all men as brothers, then they must learn that the wheels of industry run more smoothly on kindness and respect than on mere justice and honesty.

Juniors and seniors enroll in business courses: shorthand, typing, secretarial and office practice, general business, and bookkeeping.

Understanding human nature, communicating with others -- these are the aims of the English courses. Literature teaches that all men are alike in their struggle for eternal happiness; language equips men with a medium to share their experiences in that struggle.

The world can be one only if there are strong leaders to guide the thinking of men. Students of speech who have learned to be clear, convincing, and persuasive can sway a world to think thoughts of oneness and brotherhood.

All freshmen take one semester of speech. Sophomores may take dramatics. Juniors and seniors may sign for a course in public speaking including debate.

Science

Science is the competitive element in the modern world. Nations are striving to accomplish similar spectacular feats. If -- and this is one hope of the science study in our school -- if scientists of all nations can co-ordinate their efforts, then will mankind live as one family helping one another. Four sciences are taught here: biology, chemistry, physics, and physical science.

Languages

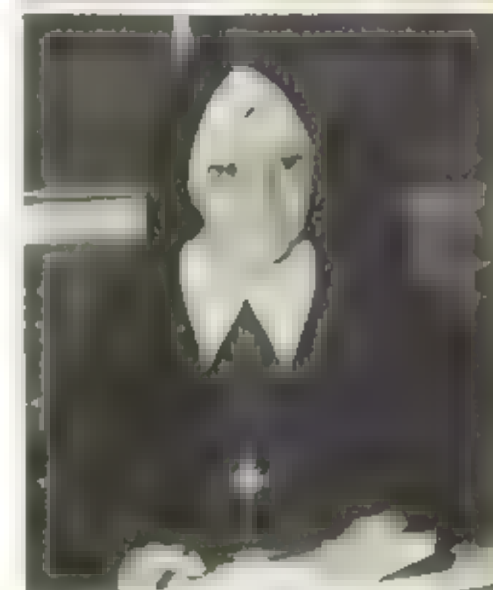

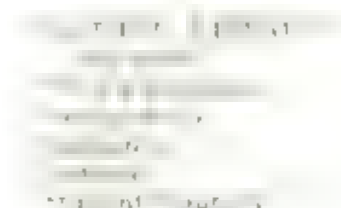

Once man spoke but one language; and then, as he discovered an ever expanding universe, he went his various ways and from his living grew many different cultures. But man is still of one family. It is a richer family because it has this world-wealth of attitudes, customs, speech. Each group is more interesting to the whole family of man because it is different.

Upper division students are required to take four years of language--two of Latin and two additional years of either Latin or a modern language, French, German, or Spanish. Some students take four years of Latin and two years of modern language besides.

Students in the C Track study applied language.

Music

Music charms its way through iron curtains and sector walls and unites men in melody. One does not need language nor interpreters nor dictionaries; music is the language of every human being. Happiness, hurt, heroism -- things that everyone feels are spoken in a tune.

Freshmen study general music for one semester. Sophomores may register for chorus. Juniors and seniors are eligible for the Plus X Chorus which meets as a credit course before school each day at 8:10.

A home, a family, is the model of the world family of man. If homes rooted in many lands are happy, wholesome places, the family of the world will be happily at home here.

For men to work in harmony, self-mastery is necessary. Control of self makes it easier for a man to recognize the needs of others and to accede to plans beneficial to the group. Physical education classes help youth to learn self-mastery. They learn that body and soul together win the eternal reward, but the body must submit to the decisions of the soul. When men have established this harmony within themselves, then will they more readily live together in harmony.

Boys and girls have physical education classes twice each week during their four years of school.

The day begins. Most DB students are still snuggled in bed when the first morning glow golds all the sky and splashes the windows of the silent school with brightness. Some few students from far places like Eureka, Cedar Hill, House Springs are up and starting for school as the sky melts into color and finally fades into blue.

The long shadows of the early arrivers stride giant-like before their owners down the chapel walk.

Chapel in the early morning is quiet, still hushed by the recent presence of Christ in the Mass offered by the sisters. It is the wish of Cardinal Ritter that high school students attend Holy Mass in their parishes; therefore, Holy Mass is not usually offered at school for the students. Students with a sense of values stop in chapel for a visit before going into the rush of the day.

Off to the first class, up all those flights of stairs. Ordinarily a student stays mostly on one of the four floors for his classes.

There's morning business in the main office -- tuition payment, transcript request, early dismissal permits,

One of the first jobs of the day is getting all the right books for the right classes since locker privileges are restricted.

And then
class! Diagram, build,
think, type, learn,
think, respond, listen.

Now what'd I do? I've just forgotten everything I memorized.

A test! And so early in the morning, too!
Let's see, what's the theme of this story?"

Finally, lunch!

This is positively the best time of the day. I never have enough lunch checks, especially when I get started on those homemade rolls the ladies serve. I even forget to count calories.

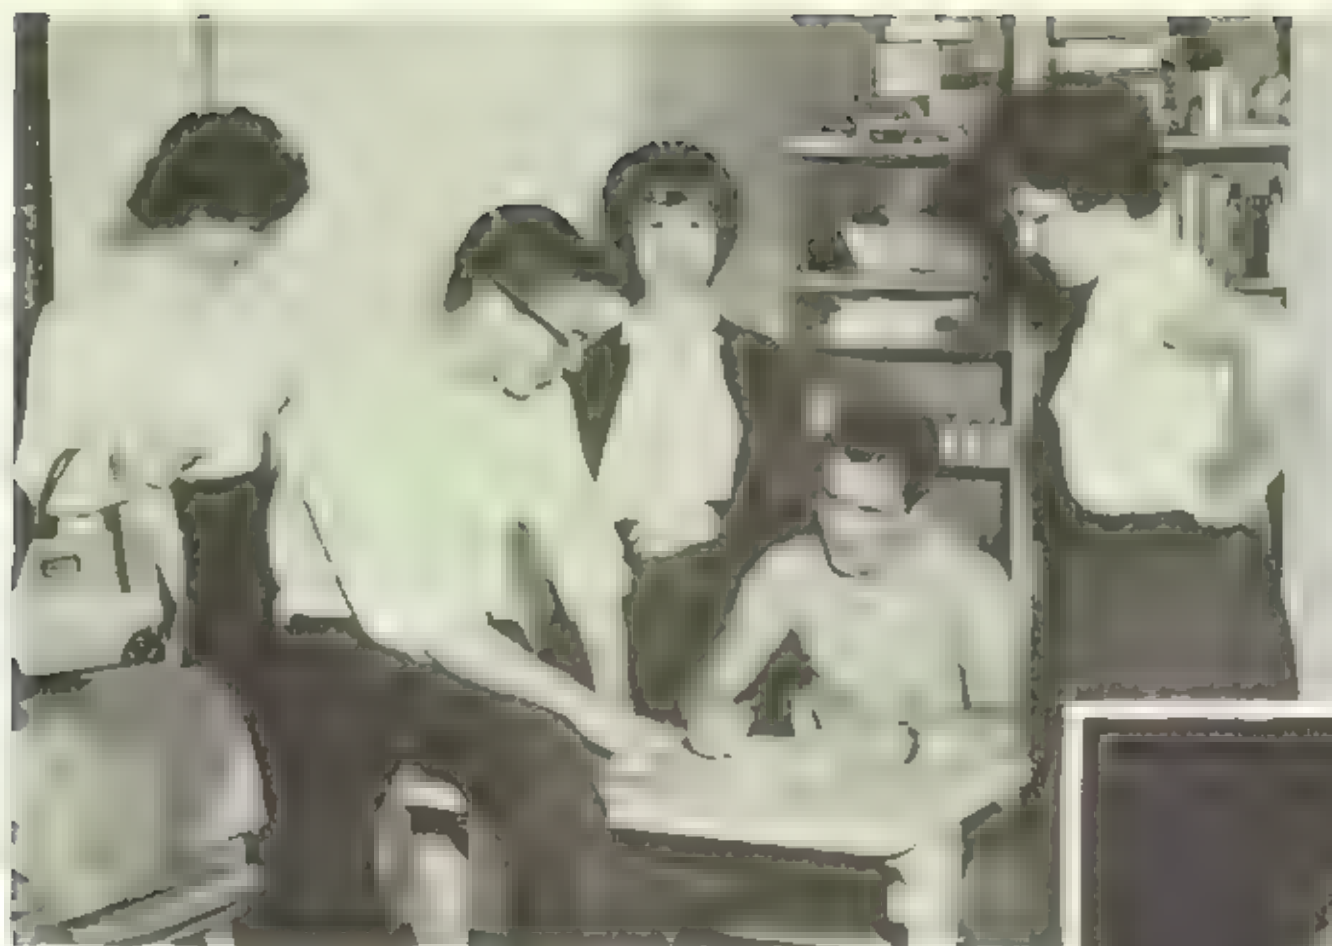

It's a good thing there are books with all the answers in the library. There's only one problem. You have to know where to find the answers.

More class work, the kind in which you learn by doing -- or laugh at your mistakes.

And then the 2:54 bell!

The class day is over. New activities begin buzzing around school. A noisy crowd gathers in the press room. Animal lovers play with the pets in the biology lab. Students on their way home stop to view the showcases or study the latest rank list. Teachers are besieged by students needing extra help. Clubs are in meeting. Crowds of students don't seem to want to go home. Father Lubeley even had to issue an edict that the building be cleared.

Finally they're on the way with a load of books -- at least three -- for home study -- at least two and a half hours.

Sometimes it's necessary to wait for a ride.

Silence settles little by little down the long corridors and students drift away and night sets in

The year began in August.

Mrs. Kovac, the bookkeeper, wondered how ever she was going to get all that money to square away.

New teachers met with Sister Verona, right, to get the low-down on school at DuBourg.

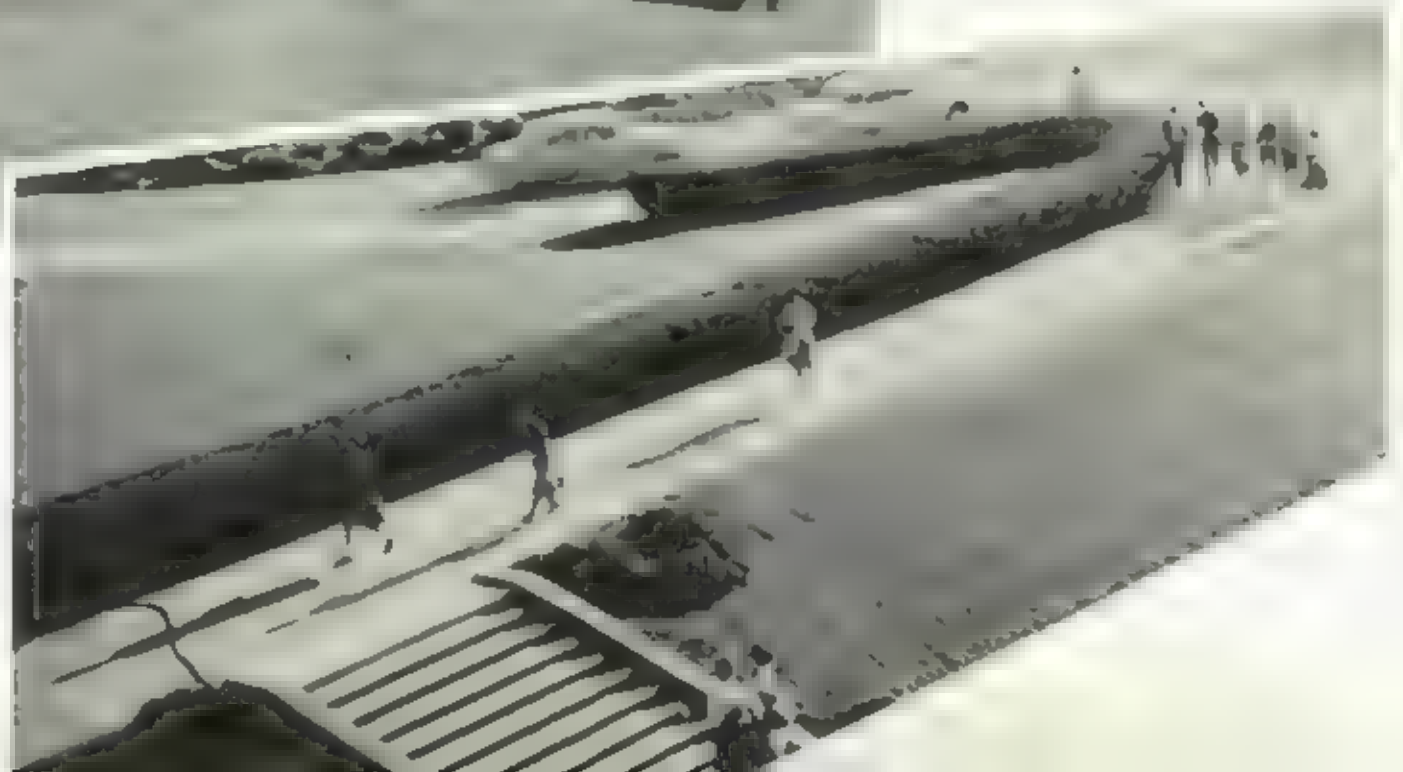

The great come-all-you days to buy and sell books were set for August. The Student Council also did good business on covers and things.

Long-time-no see friends renewed acquaintances.

That first day was brisk, new, and heavy with a year's books.

Holy Mass to dedicate the year to God's honor was offered at four neighboring parishes during the first week.
The day was April with drenching rains. And yet that day the Holy Spirit kindled the fire of His love.

In the first fervor of the new year, enthusiastic artists took to the grounds to sketch.

Does it cackle too? Senior Mary Ann Knese delighted her friends on ring day with a hat and purse made of chicken feathers.

And before you really have a chance to look as intelligent as you claim, it's picture taking day.

Birdies and combs

and nervous hands for the all-smiling day of pictures for the yearbook.

How does this smile look?

Seniors marched to the majestic music of Aida to receive their senior rings. A school ring signifies a bond of union between the school and its graduates. From now on, the student will not only be loyal but will be eager to see that his school is the best

Rings were blessed by Father Schieber,
senior floor co-ordinator. Sister Verona and Father Lubeley distributed the rings to the 436 seniors.

The making of a ring was the Student Council project in preparation for the dance in the evening. Once completed, the ring served as decoration for the morning ceremony and as an entrance to the dance in the evening.

Glorying in their new adulthood, seniors enjoyed the Ring Dance showing off their rings and sporting carnations.

Everyone is different and none fits just like mine!

Juniors and seniors were inducted into the National Honor Society for their work during the second semester of last year at an assembly early in the school year.

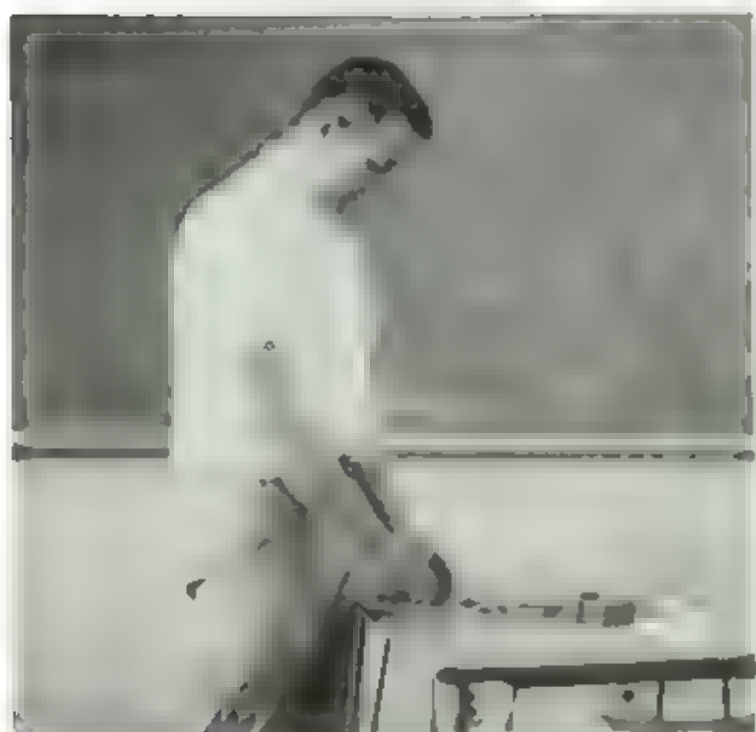

Missions

We on the mission are

Answer: hundred (a few percent)

Through its mission over the years in the home rooms the school gave nearly $10,000 to the mission Room 49 with Gary Terrell as number one of the 18 stores in the school.

Plans for the play are underway. Junior art students competed in a poster and program contest.

Posters around the school and in parishes and stores advertised the musical.

Behind-scenes crews began building stage sets.

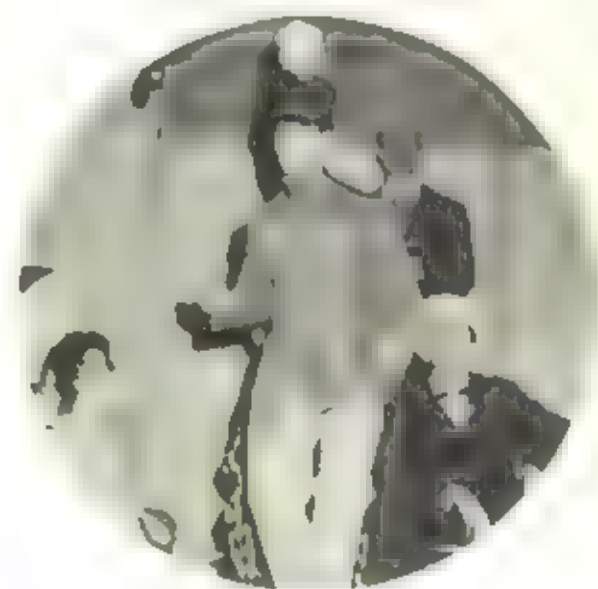

The show is on!

Professor Harold Hill attempts to get Marian the Librarian with his salesmanship. Fortunately for him, an old buddy, Marcellus, has already settled in River City. But things are in a bad way between Zaneeta Shinn, the mayor's daughter, and Tommy, the town's mischief maker.

Mavor Shinn gives his wife a bit of strong advice for carrying on as the dance director.

"The Music Man"

Mrs. Paroo hits the right note for Amaryllis, Marian's music pupil.

Tommy and Zaneeta hit it off in Shipoopt!

Mr. Hill has a score to settle with the anvil salesman.

Marian consoles Amaryllis disappointed in her first love.

Seventy-six trombones led the big parade!

MADISON

PARK

Father Kilcullen conducted the freshman retreat.

Gaining strength for the long road ahead, for all of life ahead, the students held a retreat in November. There was silence in the gym as God spoke to souls.

Father Wurm led the exercises for half of the juniors.

Father Obmann spoke to half of the juniors.

Father Owen gave conferences for the sophomores.

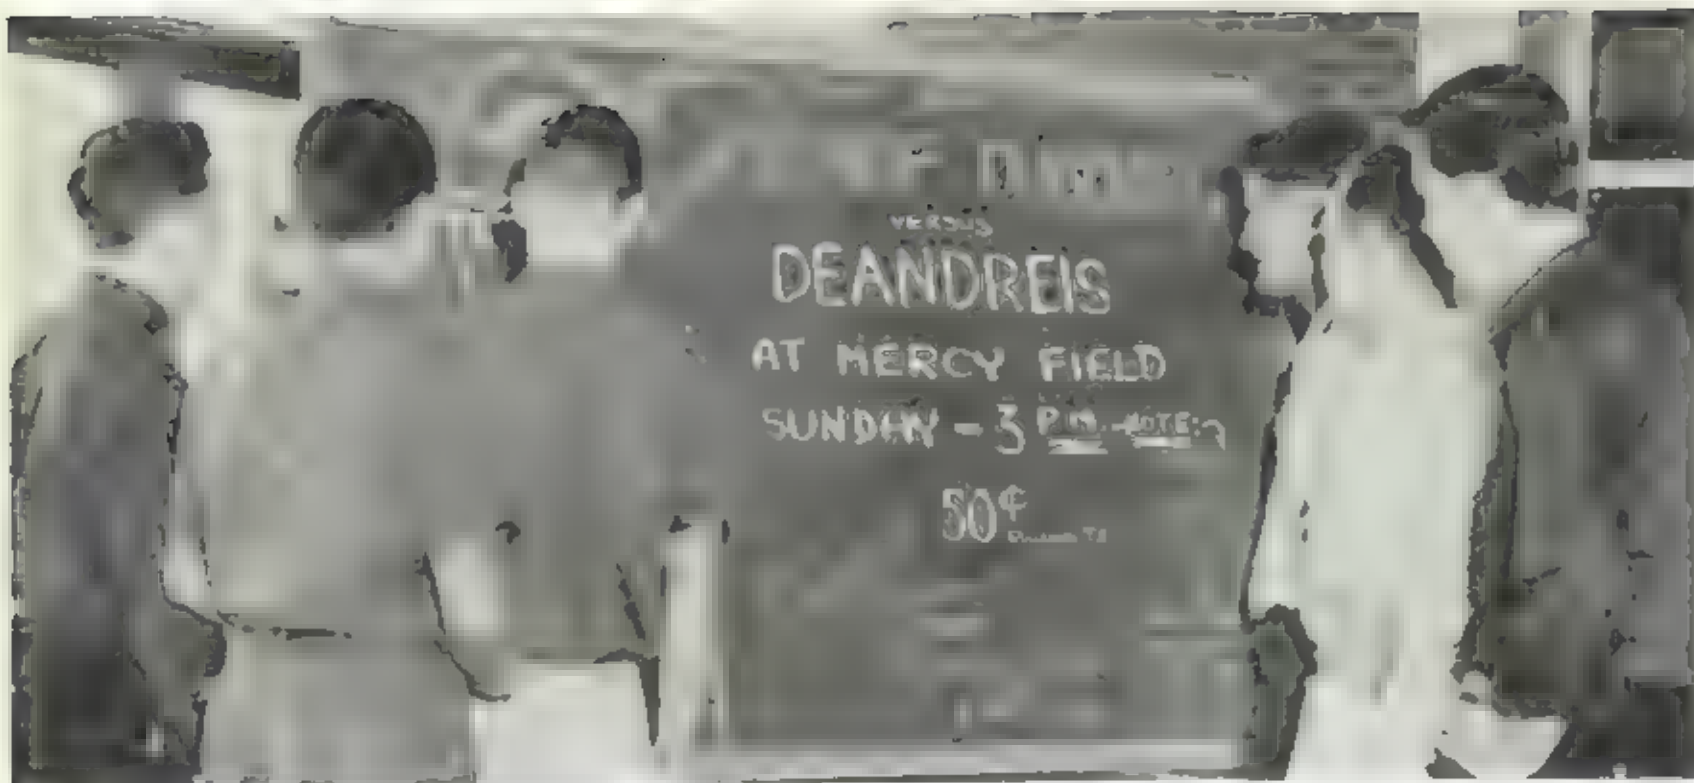

Between conferences there was time for prayer and reading and confessions.

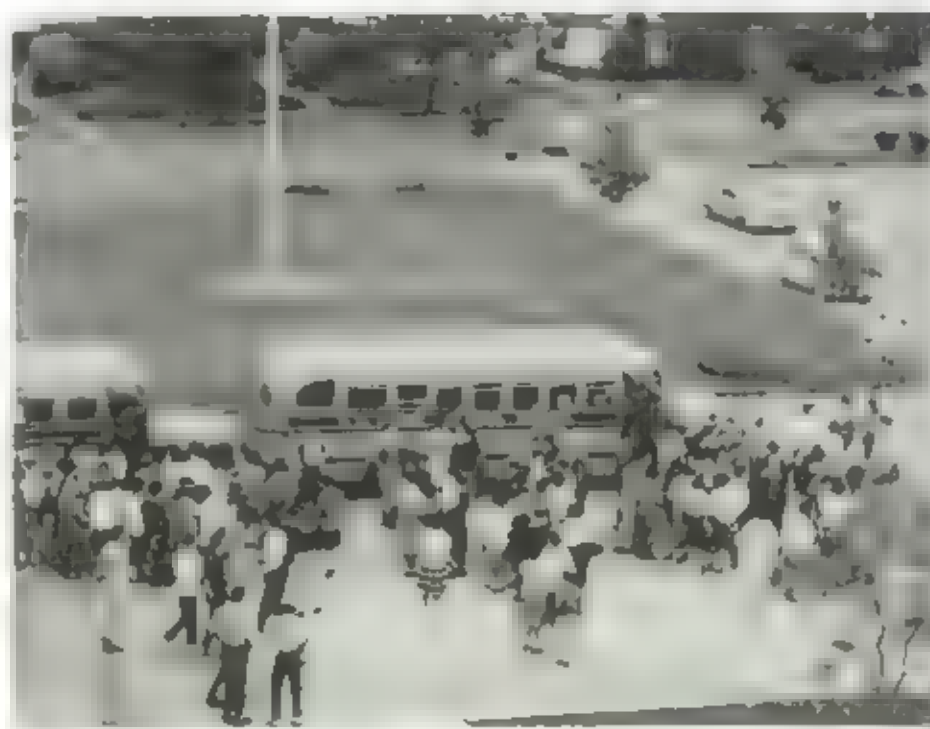

Losing the City
Championship to McKinley put a damper on the cheer at the Football Finale. Loyal athletes and ardent fans filled the gym for the dance at the close of the football season.

Since DuBourg has no football field of its own,
all games are a bus away.

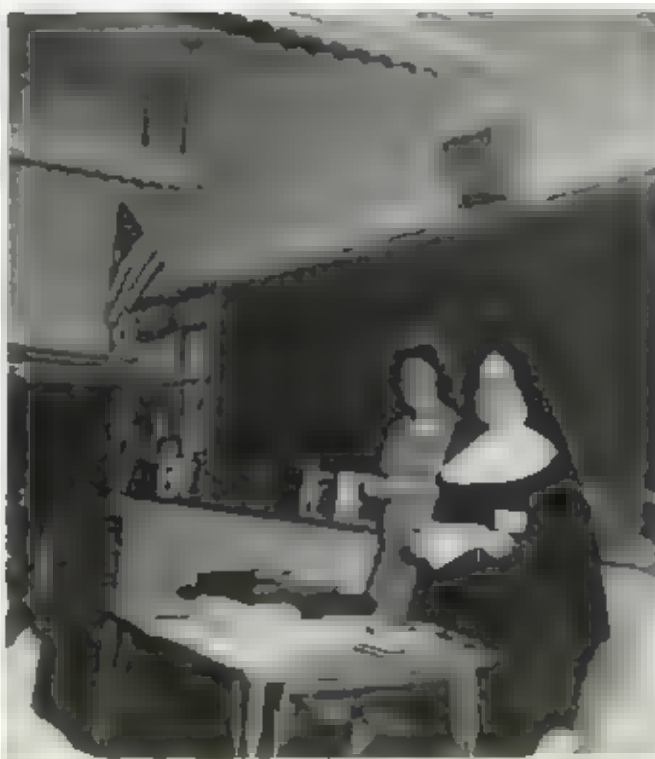

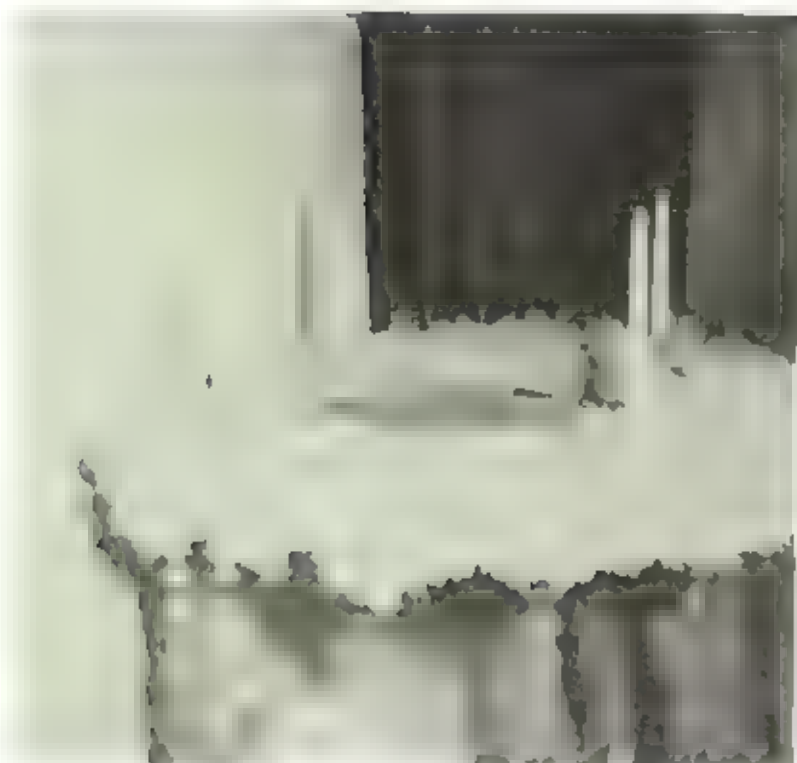

Victory -- in the stands.

Twenty colleges came to explain their schools to DB students and their parents. Sophomores, juniors, and seniors had a chance to get firsthand information on the schools of their choice.

Advent was marked with the traditional wreaths and this year with an Advent play by the sophomore speech class.

Pius X Choristers began caroling at the convent on Christmas Eve for a tour of the neighborhood around school.

Music of orchestra and chorus combined presented a Carol Concert for Christmas.

Postulants of the Sisters of the Most Precious Blood were entertained at a Christmas party by the DB Missionaires. Also invited were members of the DuBourg Clubs and the Catholic Action Club.

The Snow Ball at the semester break gave the needed relaxation from school and homework.

It hurts only a minute and then you're safe from all those childish sicknesses.

That was a good shot but the "Girl from Outer Space" isn't harmed. Soph speech classes put on the play after school for the missions.

Life moved on.

Goodbye, my floor, we're glad to be back home.

Friday night and the homework!

These things Monday!

Really, I can't stay for long I've got to go right home.

For me!

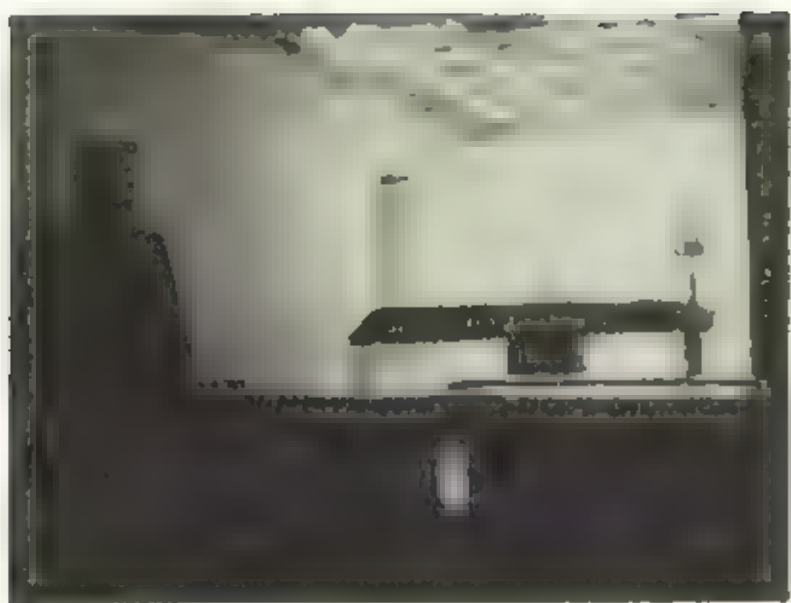

Give me liberty or give me death.

Mine eyes have seen the glory

Freshman social studies classes presented a patriotic program in February honoring Washington and Lincoln.

A day apart was the annual Day of Recollection. All freshmen made a single day of retreat at one of the retreat houses. Seniors and other class members made closed retreats earlier in the year.

Scientific demonstrations of biology, chemistry, and physics students were on display at an elimination fair at school during February and March. Exhibits which qualified for the City-wide fair at Washington University received a blue ribbon.

Sixty Honor Society Members were inducted at the spring ceremony in February. The following Sunday, the students and their parents were honored with a tea.

Flowers and stars, ruffles and curls -- and it was prom night.

Couples danced in a brightly decorated gym and wished the music would never stop.

After years of waiting-- graduation. All seniors from diocesan schools met at the cathedral for Holy Mass with Cardinal Ritter.

Diplomas

with the official seal, were finally property of the 436 graduates.
